YOUR LOCAL COUNCILLORS

Town councillors are elected representatives who help shape the future of their local community. They serve on committees where they discuss and make important decisions on behalf of both the Town Council and its residents. They consider local issues, set policies, and ensure that the needs and interests of the community are reflected in the Council's work.

Responsibilities include:

- Policy Making
- Budgeting
- Community Representation
- Planning & Development
- Public Engagement

Q: Are town Councillors paid?

A: No, all of our Town Councillors are volunteers!

What is the difference between a Town Councillor and a County Councillor?

Town councillors focus on very local issues that directly affect your immediate community. They deal with things like parks, local events, public benches, allotments, and community buildings

District or county councillors serve a wider region and are responsible for larger services such as education, highways, social care, rubbish collection, housing, and planning applications

In short, town councillors handle grassroots community matters, while district or county councillors manage broader services that impact the whole area. Both work together to support and improve local life
